Earn a DEGREE and earn a living

You take learning very seriously — especially where your career is concerned. Whatever it takes, we know you're ready to learn on your own terms at Dallas TeleCollege, the online campus of the Dallas County Community College District (DCCCD).

Here's the beauty of distance learning — all you need to become a student is a computer, TV, VCR or DVD player. Your classroom can be your living room or the coffee shop down the street.

Our courses are affordable, flexible, student-centered, and many start every month. We offer several degrees and over 200 courses.

Institutions within DCCCD are fully accredited and most courses transfer to other colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Everything You Need... Virtually

Dallas TeleCollege, The Virtual Campus delivers all instruction totally at a distance with no on-campus requirements. For textbook, computer and multimedia requirements, course descriptions, library services, audio and video streaming options, and more, visit us online at www.telecollege.dcccd.edu/schedule

Course Formats

Online Courses (INET) are delivered using only computers and multimedia components. Students are required to have Internet access and the latest version of a browser (Netscape or Internet Explorer). Some online courses may require additional components such as CD's, and audio/streaming video.

Telecourse PLUS Courses (TVP) are delivered using a combination of multimedia online computer activities and video programs. Students are required to have Internet access and the latest version of a browser (Netscape or Internet Explorer). Video programs require the viewer to access a local TV cable channel, or a VHS format videocassette player to record the programs. Videotapes may also be leased from our online bookstore, viewed on campus in the media center, available through CD's and audio/streaming video.

Open Enrollment Classes, these courses are delivered to you at a distance, with no campus requirements and start about every month. Online student services are available and the Telecourse PLUS and Online/Multimedia formats are available.

Campus-Based Distance Learning

Distance learning courses provide instruction to students who are not at the same location as the instructors and can use various forms of technology – the Internet, television, phone and fax. Students must meet prerequisites or assessment scores where applicable, and these academic courses will transfer to other institutions. Campus-based distance courses are offered by our seven colleges and may include some on-site instruction, orientations and testing.

Individualized Distance Learning Course (IDL) IDL courses are individual study courses that use print materials and required activities related to course topics. This self-paced course requires a faculty-to-student agreement contract for specific work assignments and/or projects. Additional requirements include a study-faculty orientation, written assignments, and tests. Contact your instructor for more information.

Online Courses (INET) are delivered using only computers and multimedia components. Students are required to have Internet access and the latest version of a browser (Netscape or Internet Explorer). Some online courses may require additional components such as CD's, and audio/streaming video.

Telecourse Courses (TV) require the viewer to access a local TV cable channel or watch the video programs via the Internet (video streaming) or CD-Rom. Videotapes and CDs may be leased from our online bookstore, and most tapes are available in campus media centers.

Telecourse PLUS Courses (TVP) are delivered using a combination of interactive online computer activities and video programs. Students are required to have Internet access and the latest version of a browser (Netscape or Internet Explorer). Video programs are available through local TV cable, CD, or the Internet (video streaming). Videotapes and CDs may be leased from our online bookstore, and most tapes are available in campus media centers.

For additional information on audio and video streaming, the online bookstore or technical support, visit us online at www.telecollege.dcccd.edu.

Campus-Based distance learning course sections may require on-campus orientations and testing.
